Dr. Hughes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hughes of 1937 Farmer Avenue, Murray. He graduated from Murray College High School in 1951 and received his B. A. degree from Murray State College in 1956. During his college days he was President of the Student Council and chosen for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities". He was a member of Delta Alpha social fraternity.

He received his M. D. degree from the University of Louisville School of Medicine in 1959 and while in medical school was awarded two summer fellowships in the Sister Kenny Fellowship program in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the Louisville Rehabilitation Center. He was a member of the Phi Chi Medical Fraternity. Dr. Hughes received his medical education with the assistance of the Kentucky State Medical Association's Rural Scholarship Fund. The people in Calloway County will recall this program as one in which they set up two scholarships for the training of rural physicians.

Dr. Hughes served his rotating internship at Charity Hospital in New Orleans, Louisiana, from July to September, 1960. He served as ship physician for Aloca Steamship Company, cruising in the Caribbean. In October, 1960 he joined the Air Force and after attending a three-month course in Aviation Medicine at Brooks Aerospace Medical Center, Texas, served eighteen months overseas at Kadena Air Force Base, Okinawa as a Flight Surgeon and General Practitioner.

Dr. Hughes is a member of the College Presbyterian Church and will reside at 1600 Farmer Avenue.

SECOND TAPPAN NATIONAL SALES MEETING IS PLANNED

This Is Headline That Never Happened

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The headline that never happened:

184 DIE IN WORST CRASH But it could have happened Tuesday. Two jetliners with 184 persons aboard raced toward each other at a combined speed of about 1,200 miles an hour and at the same 33,000-foot altitude over central Kansas.

The pilot of one squinted into the setting sun. The pilot of the other tensely awaited radio instructions to change course — instructions that never came.

A collision was avoided when Capt. C. E. Davis, pilot of a Trans World Airlines Convair 880 jet, veered his huge plane to the right missing by 400 yards or less a big American Airlines Boeing 707 jet.

A collision at that altitude almost certainly would have spelled aviation's worst disaster, surpassing the serial collision of a United Air Lines DC-8 and a TWA Super Constellation over New York City Dec. 16, 1960, which killed 134.

The Federal Aviation Agency FAA Wednesday admitted a "human error" at its radar control center south of Kansas City caused Tuesday's near collision. Now the FAA is trying to pinpoint how that "human error" occurred.

Marshall Benedict, FAA regional public affairs officer, said a controller at the center had been suspended, pending completion of an investigation. Neither was identified.

The suspensions are routine in a matter such as this, Benedict said.

"But the error obviously was at the center control. It was a human error, not mechanical. We intend to find out exactly why it was committed."

Abortion Plans Are Still Confused

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Sherri Finkbine's plans to terminate the pregnancy of the child she fears may be horribly deformed by thalidomide remained a mystery today. But she said she hopes to find a country where she can obtain an abortion before Sunday.

"We hope it can be done as soon as possible," she told United Press International Wednesday. "The doctor thinks it will have to be done by Sunday if we are to avoid a Caesarian operation."

"We have made no decision on where to obtain the abortion," the 30-year-old mother of four healthy children said late Wednesday. "We have to weigh our doctors and leave it up to them."

The local television personality and her husband, Robert, decided to leave the country for the operation when their efforts for legal action to protect them against possible prosecution failed.

The Finkbines decided to terminate the pregnancy when they learned thalidomide was blamed for thousands of malformed births in Europe and other countries. Mrs. Finkbine took the pills, obtained by her husband in Europe, early in her pregnancy.

Although thalidomide was never released for general use in the United States, it is thought to be the cause of several deformed babies born to American mothers who obtained the drug in Europe. Finkbine, a high school teacher, said earlier her husband would leave the country to obtain the abortion because of their failure to gain legal assurance there would be no criminal prosecution under Arizona laws. Local laws say a mother's life must be in danger before such an operation can be performed.

Denmark, Sweden and Japan were listed as possible countries in which the Finkbines could go.

Eighty-Five Salesmen And Managers Will Convene Here

The Tappan Company will hold a national sales convention in Murray on August 6 and 7. It was reported today by Robert Wyman, General Manager of the Murray Manufacturing Company.

Approximately 85 sales executives, district managers and territory representatives will travel to Murray from all sections of the nation to attend a series of sales meetings designed to increase sales, analyze marketing problems and improve customer service of Tappan appliances.

Executives from the home office in Mansfield who will attend these meetings in Murray are A. B. Ritzenthaler, vice president of sales; D. T. Webster, product manager for gas ranges, and D. C. Rainey, product manager for electric ranges.

District sales managers from the South, Midwest, East and New England states will attend the sales meetings along with their territory sales representatives.

In addition to discussions of sales and marketing problems, the Tappan sales personnel will conduct product demonstrations and meet with management personnel of the local plant in regard to production, engineering, quality control and scheduling operations and procedures.

Also, the sales group will tour the local plant to get a first hand look at the various manufacturing operations at Murray, Wyman said.

It will be remembered that in February of 1958 a national sales meeting was held in Murray with over 100 salesmen, district and regional managers visiting Murray.

Since this will be the first time to visit Murray for many of the 85 persons expected here next week, the general public is urged to present its "best side" to the visitors. Impressions received in Murray and of the Murray plant, will have a great effect on the salesmen and the promotion of the product which they handle.

In 1958 the sales meeting continued over a period of about six days, while this year the meeting will be held for two days.

Kennedy Offers Easier Terms On Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy is ready to offer Russia easier terms for a nuclear test ban treaty if Moscow will agree to inspections on Soviet soil.

Kennedy said at his news conference late Wednesday that U. S. disarmament negotiator Arthur Dean would return to Geneva with the new proposition.

The President said "important new technical assessments" promised a "simpler and more economical" means of detecting underground explosions, making it possible to offer Russia easier terms for policing a test ban agreement.

But Kennedy emphasized that some on-scene inspections still were necessary to distinguish between nuclear explosions and earthquakes.

May Need Fewer
"It may be that we shall not need as many as we have needed in the past," he said, "but we find no justification for the Soviet claim that a test ban treaty can be effective without on-site inspection."

In its April, 1961, proposals at Geneva, the United States demanded 20 inspections a year on Soviet territory, in addition to permanent detection posts. Russia rejected the on-site inspections, and agreed to the detection posts only if they were manned by Soviet nationals.

New data obtained from the Project Vela underground atomic tests in Nevada make it easier to detect small underground blasts from a greater distance.

But congressional experts say there has been no significant change in the means of telling an earthquake from an atomic blast.

Public Will Be Informed
Kennedy said he would keep Congress and the public fully informed of U. S. moves toward a test ban treaty. Such a treaty would require two-thirds support in the Senate.

Shortly after the news conference, Kennedy met at the White House with Dean, disarmament negotiator, and Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Glenn T. Seaborg and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Other points Kennedy touched at his news conference: Thalidomide — Kennedy urged every housewife to check her medicine cabinet for the baby-deforming drug thalidomide. He urged Congress to pass strong legislation to guard the public against such harmful drugs.

Albany — He described the Albany, Ga., racial situation as "completely unsatisfactory." He said he found it "wholly inexplicable" that the Albany city council would not try to work with the Negro citizens.

Taxes — Kennedy said the Labor Department report showing a drop in the jobless rate in July was "somewhat encouraging" but he would have to study other economic indicators before deciding whether to ask for an income tax cut this year.

Missiles — The United States was given advance notice of Britain's plans to do its agreement with this country on operating Thor missile bases. He said it should have "no adverse effect" on Western unity or the United States' ability to defend Western Europe.

Kennedy urged the House to approve U. S. purchase of United Nations bonds. The world organization is daily proving its effectiveness, he said, and the bonds are "essential" for its survival.

Tests — Technicians at Johnston Island are repairing the damage caused by the explosion of a rocket, and after it is fixed a decision will be made on whether to go ahead with more atomic-phobic nuclear tests.

ANTIDOTE UNKNOWN

FOR LEAD POISON

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — One in three children poisoned by lead dies, statistics show.

Doctors agree there is no really effective antidote for lead poisoning. The responsibility for prevention lies with the family.

O. L. Hogsett, safety specialist for the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, offered this safety advice to parents:

Never permit a child to chew on painted surfaces or to eat paint flakes from peeling walls and woodwork. If your house or apartment was painted before you occupied it, remove loose or flaking paint and plaster.

If possible, repaint your house using an interior paint that contains not more than one per cent lead. The label on the container will list the percentage.

Never use exterior paints on indoor walls, woodwork, toys or furniture. These paints contain as high as 70 per cent lead.

ADVANCES PREDICTED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission has predicted that nuclear power plants will be economically competitive with conventional electric plants by 1966 in some high-cost areas.

The commission's forecast was made in a statement to the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee. It was made public Sunday by Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., committee chairman.

JAR VIRTUALS AT RECORD RATE

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — Modern housewives, with easy access to ready-to-cook foods, are doing more home canning than their great-grandmothers.

That statement comes from John Fisher, Muncie, vice president of Ball Brothers, a major manufacturer of canning jars. Fisher disputed the view that home-canning is a lost art.

"More women are preserving and canning now than were alive in the United States back in 1885," Fisher said. He based his statement on an estimate that about 12 million homemakers were included in the 1985 population of some 55 million persons.

"This year more than 22 million women will put up more than one billion jars of foodstuffs," Fisher said. "So you can see that home canning is not a lost art, as many folks seem to think."

Fisher said information available to his firm indicates that home canning supplies sold annually in the United States amount to about $40 million and that 44.5 per cent of the housewives still do some home canning, freezing and preserving.

$175,000 RANSOM—Three prisoners ransomed from Fidel Castro's clutches are saluted at Miami, Fla., airport. They are Fazio Freyre, 42 ($100,000); George Govin, 33 ($50,000); Ernest Williams, 31 ($25,000). They were captured in the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion, and they said treatment of other such prisoners is "unbearable," but morale is high.

A HOUSE DIVIDED AGAIN? ITSELF CANNOT FLOAT, EITHER—This half of a house appears to be resting on top of the water at Oakland, Calif., but actually, underneath is a barge which, pulling a leak and sank under it. The house, sawed in two to make way for a freeway, was being relocated in Concord, Calif., and had just been loaded on the barge.

SPORTS PARADE

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Jack (Doc) Kearns, the old medicine man who concocted the first million boxing gate, came up today with what he is certain will be another.

Louisville, according to the good doctor, already has tentatively offered a million for a light heavyweight title bout between veteran Archie Moore and Cassius Clay. But Doc, who as Moore's manager has more than somewhat to say about the match, thinks that Los Angeles likely may outbid Clay's home town.

"And if one or the other of them doesn't get on the stick," observed Kearns, "they both may blow it because Ingemar Johansson is making attractive gestures for a bout with Moore in Europe either in October or November."

The amazing part of this whole bit is that Moore, at his "ancient" age and owning only the light heavyweight title of the world in California, can attract these kind of fox car figures. For he still is an attractive proposition at anybody's box office and the natural "feud" which would result when he counters the loquacious young Clay's buildup remarks would make this one a bout well worth seeing.

Gate Might Be Amazing

The amazing part is that Doc, whose sprightly mien and twinkling eyes belie the fact that he will be 80 this month, well may add another million dollar gate to his collection.

Nashville, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylon Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gallimore, Bro. and Mrs. Terry Sills, and children, Tommy, Mike and Key Jenkins.

Glynn Morris Orr was carried to Dr. Newman Friday night with strep throat.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Marshall of Paris, visited Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins Sunday night.

Maybe not so startling, at that. Because, after all, the old medicine man invented the first one way back in 1921 when he sent Jack Dempsey against Georges Carpentier, the French "orchid man." And he also was the moving force behind the second one, when Dempsey fought Luis Angel Firpo, the "wild bull" of the Pampas.

But Doc is not concerned with past history. He wants to make something new.

"Actually, this would be a better bout than the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston thing," he shrugged, adjusting a gray silk tie on his natty button-down blue-striped shirt. "They're two dull guys who never have much to say; can't talk. They won't contribute much to the buildup they will need."

But Moore and Clay — plus Kearns — would indeed be something else again.

"One of these boys can talk real good," Doc explained, a fact which needs little substantiation. "We'd put the Patterson — Liston thing in the shade."

They might, at that. For when these three mucketeers got finished sopping up the headlines the heavyweight duo might be lucky to obtain a paragraph.

Helps With Publicity

Moore, with Doc handling the reins in the background, always has contributed deft publicity movements. Clay is a cocky young gentleman who somewhere along the way would be unable to refrain from commenting on the age of the elderly mongoose. It wouldn't be long until the feud was real.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 198 The internecine struggle, 1861-65, was called "the first modern war" for a multiplicity of reasons. It marked the first effective use of a submarine, machine gun, periscope (for trench warfare), field telegraph, aircraft carrier, ironclad navies, organized medical and hospital corps, hospital ships, income tax, photographic reconnaissance, electrically exploded torpedoes and bombs, repeating rifles, legal voting for servicemen, anesthetics for wounded, reviving gun turrets, flame throwers, "booby trap" landmines, hand grenades.

N. W. Haynes patented this (see right below) Aug. 28, 1862. Made of cast iron, and about the size of an orange, it had an inner and outer shell. Upon the outside of the inner shell were 14 "nipples" designed to hold regular percussion caps. This inner shell was 2 1/2 inches in diameter. The outer shell was in two halves, threaded and screwed together. Before firing, each nipple was fitted with caps. Upon impact, one or more of these exploded, breaking up the shell into multiple destructive bits.

Household Hints

To oil the lock of a door of a car, oil the key and insert it, turning it back and forth to distribute the oil.

When it's raining and you want to dry clothes, open the carpet, turn it upside down and string the clothesline around the legs. More hanging space can be made by criss-crossing the cords diagonally.

To iron sleeves without a special sleeve board, pin a clean towel around your rolling pin and slip the sleeve over this.

To prevent discoloring of roses and other flower containers, dissolve two or more aspirin in lukewarm water in the container before adding flowers.

To remove ball point pen ink from clothes, sponge the stain with acetone or amyl acetate; both are available at drug stores.

Keep a sick child busy by giving him a button box and spoon of thread. Let him sort and string together all buttons of the same size.

Stow a canister of making soda near the outdoor grill. It's an emergency fat fire extinguisher.

Colored gloves that no longer suit your wardrobe can be dyed a basic brown or black.

One drop of water every two seconds from a leaky faucet will waste 34 gallons of water a month.

FIRST IN 40 YEARS—James L. Haddon, 70, and Mary Johnson leave voting booths at Lake Providence, La., after

BELIEVE WINDOWS DISTRACT STUDENTS

DETROIT (UPI)—A new theory on "Why Johnny Can't Read" will be put to the test at Wayne's Hoover School here next fall.

The theory?
Grade school children ignore their studies to watch what's going on outside, particularly in the ultra-modern schools where the emphasis on light is embodied in designs which feature wide expanses of windows.

The windows at Hoover School are being replaced by opaque panels this summer.

Educators will watch closely to learn whether youngsters learn faster when they can't look outside.

Education Facilities Laboratories, Inc., the Ford Foundation and the University of Michigan are financing the study. Co-ordinator is Prof. C. Theodore Larson of the University of Michigan.

The school's 120 pupils were tested before summer vacation to determine their achievement level.
At the end of the next school year, a similar test will determine what effect the nine months without windows' has had.

ALLOWANCE GROWS WITH THE CHILD

URBANA, Ill. (UPI)—If your child asks for an allowance increase, don't give him a hasty
"no," a University of Illinois family life specialist advises.

The child's financial problems are just as real to him as yours are to you, said Mrs. Margaret Lynch. Vacations always bring new and different interests, and he may need more money.

As he grows older, as his interests and activities expand, it is only natural that his money needs will increase.

But be sure he understands that his allowance can't be increased arbitrarily on request. Take time to talk things over and give him a chance to state his case. Help him to understand that his allowance is his share of the family income.

Organize Back To School Shopping

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Back to school shopping for three or four children can throw many a parent into a tizzy.

Fast way to approach the preparation is with a well-organized outline of their needs and how much is to be spent instead of going on a helter-skelter buying spree, says a woman who calmly purchases sweaters, skirts, shirts, blouses and coats by the thousands.

Mrs. Josephine Brewster thinks nothing of ordering 20,000 sweaters, 20,000 winter coats and 25,000 blankets a year for her children.

Foster Parents' Plan
She is associate executive director of Foster Parents' Plan, Inc. (FPP) and is in charge of all purchasing for the 28,000 the plan at present aids. Her bill for clothing and such incidentals as schoolbook bags, pencils and paper runs around $1 million per year.

"I shop for value, sturdiness and warmth," said Mrs. Brewster. She also looks for simplicity because frills run up the bill without increasing a garment's durability.

"Oh, the things we send are good-looking," said Mrs. Brewster. "We just eliminate the doodads."

Mrs. Brewster, a widow, has been with foster parents 10 years. When she started purchasing, it was for 5,000 children. Today, its 28,000 are in the colony of Hong Kong and seven countries — Greece, Italy, South Korea, France, South Viet Nam, the Philippines and Columbia, the plan's first South American country.

Various Supporting Groups—FPP's support comes from individuals, schools, clubs, churches, industry, veterans groups and other organizations who contribute toward the support of a particular needy child. Some of it is earmarked for clothing and other needs such as blankets, linens, soap and school supplies; some goes to the child in cash.

Mrs. Brewster shops constantly and has one advantage on her budgeting the average homemaker does not have. She buys wholesale—"often below," she said in an interview. "We usually buy off season, and the manufacturer is happy to give us a break because it keeps his production line going year round."

There's also another advantage. Because one order may be for 5,000 winter coats, for instance, she can talk the manufacturer into minor style changes to trim costs—elasticized inserts at the waistline instead of the costlier belt to give shape to a jacket; a fabric tab instead of metal in the collar for hanging; elimination of ornamental tabs and excess pockets.

Colors Perk 'Up
Use of color is one of her ways of perk'ing up simple clothes. She will order the whole range of shades in which a manufacturer has a fabric available.

South Korean children love red, she said. But FPP doesn't ship red to Italian children — "the color there carries the stigma of communism in a lot of minds," she said. In turn, South Korean children don't like denim because its faded blue is the color of prison uniforms.

She also has found that even the neediest child is clothes-conscious.

"It's amazing," said Mrs. Brewster. "For the child who has absolutely nothing, you'd think anything would do."

In most countries FPP serves, knee-highs (ox) are the thing as they are with children in this country in winter.

"But we tried sending the longer legged, and warmer, underwear to children in France," she said. "They wanted the briefs. Bikini influence, I suppose."

Thalidomide Still In Use Superstition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some quantities of the drug thalidomide, which may cause babies to be born severely deformed, have been found in use in the last few days, George P. Larrick, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, said today.

Larrick, testifying before a Senate investigating subcommittee, did not elaborate on the statement. He was not questioned further about the places or circumstances under which the drug was being used.

A government operations subcommittee summoned FDA and public health officials to ask them how research information on potentially dangerous drugs is exchanged between agencies of government and nations.

Chairman Hubert H. Humphrey said the tragic consequences of the use of thalidomide pointed up the "appalling" gap between the billions of dollars spent on research and the use which is made of the information thus obtained.

Larrick said the drug thalidomide was sent to about 1,200 physicians for experimental use. Under the law, he said, firms may make experimental drugs available to "experts" of their choosing for tests to evaluate the safety of the medicine.

"This is a loophole through which you could drive a South Dakota wagonload of hay," Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., commented. "They can experiment on an unlimited number of people through an unlimited number of outlets."

Under questioning, Larrick said the petitioners do not have to be informed that they are taking experimental drugs.

Humphrey did not say when the hearings would resume. But a committee aide said it would be necessary now to "sit back and take a long look at what we heard."

In response to a reporter's question, Humphrey said he thought the Merrell Company, which produced the drug in this country, "acted responsibly" in the thalidomide affair.

The senators also questioned Dr. Frances Kelsey, the FDA medical officer who managed to keep thalidomide off the commercial market in the United States, thus preventing perhaps thousands of deformed babies.

Humphrey said Mrs. Kelsey's skill and diligence saved the United States from a tragedy that will strike an estimated 5,000 mothers in Europe, where the drug originated.

REVIVAL BROUGHT PROTESTS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Spirited revival services conducted in a tent brought protests from sleepless residents of Commonwealth Avenue Monday.

In a petition asking the county commission to intervene, the residents said the revival had caused several of them to "seek their doctor's aid and assistance in an effort to stand this nightly loud, aggravating, harassing and bothersome activity." The commission suggested the group seek relief through the Bible.

If You Believe That The Art Of Pitching Is Dead, As Casey Would Say, "Just Look It Up"

By NORMAN MILLER

Who says the art of pitching is dead? This is the major leagues' greatest season for no-hit no-run games in 45 years.

As Casey Stengel would say, just look it up.

The latest no-hitter by Bill Monbouquette of the Boston Red Sox Wednesday night in Chicago was the fourth in the majors this season.

You have to go back to the deadball days of 1917 to find a year when as many as four different pitchers threw no-hitters.

Of course, there were four no-hitters in 1951, but two of them were pitched by Allie Reynolds, and another, by Bob Feller, actually was a no-hit, one-run game.

Missed Perfect Game
Monbouquette, 25-year old right hander from Medford, Mass., hurled his 1-0 masterpiece against the Chicago White Sox and missed a perfect game only because he walked Al Smith in the second inning.

Oddly, Monbouquette had been knocked out of the box in his four previous starts and had not pitched a complete game since June 29. He had been dropped from the American League All-Star staff because of his ineffective pitching during the past month.

It was a pressure-packed game. The Red Sox did not score for "Monbo" until the eighth inning when Lu Clinton singled with two out following hits by Jim Pagnoni and Pete Runnels. Clinton also helped Monbouquette defensively by leaping against the wall to grab Charley Maxwell's bid for a hit in the second.

Early Dynn, bidding for his 29th victory, was the loser.

Standings Unchanged
The season's three earlier no-hitters were pitched by Bo Belinsky of the Angels, Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers and Earl Wilson, Monbouquette's Red Sox team mate.

While Monbouquette was making the big news of the day, the situation atop both league standings was status quo.

The New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from the Washington Senators, 6-4 and 5-2 in 11 innings, and the Los Angeles Angels remained six games behind them by beating the Cleveland Indians twice, 2-1 and 8-4 in 10 innings.

The Detroit Tigers also swept the Kansas City Athletics, 6-5 and 9-1, and the Minnesota Twins beat the Baltimore Orioles, 3-1.

In the National League, the two top contenders both lost. The Pittsburgh Pirates walloped the Los Angeles Dodgers, 9-1; and the Chicago Cubs edged the San Francisco Giants, 3-2 in 10 innings.

The Cincinnati Reds defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-1; the Milwaukee Braves shutout the Houston Colts, 3-0, and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Mets, 11-9.

Ford Won 11th
John Blanchard's three-run homer in the 11th gave the Yankees their eighth victory before 48,147 fans, largest crowd ever to watch a professional sports event in Washington. The hit broke up a 2-2 duel between Whitey Ford and Dave Stenhouse. The triumph was Ford's 11th.

In the opening game, the Senators made four errors in the third inning to sabotage starter Bennie Daniels and help the Yankees get off to a 6-1 lead. Rookie Jim Bouton pitched a seven-hitter for his fifth victory. Bud Ziptel hit a Washington homer.

Dean Chance pitched a five-hitter for the Angels' opening win over Cleveland, losing a shutout on John Romano's ninth-inning homer. Los Angeles scored four runs in the 10th inning of the nightcap, breaking a 4-4 tie when Ruben Gomez of the Indians balked home a run. Bob Botz was the winner in relief.

Tigers Won Twin Bill
Detroit capitalized on 20 bases on balls and four nightcap errors by Kansas City to sweep a twin bill.

Don Demeter hit a two-run homer and Tony Gonzalez collected four hits in Philadelphia's 18th attack against the Mets. Frank Thomas hit two New York homers, one with the bases loaded.

Minnesota pitcher Jim Kaat scattered nine hits and drove in the tie-breaking run in the 11th to beat Robin Roberts and the Orioles.

In the NL, Bob Friend pitched an eight-hitter for his 12th win as the Dodgers committed three errors. Bill Mazeroski hit a Pittsburgh homer and John Roseboro hit for the Dodgers' only run.

George Altman's two-run homer in the 10th inning and Don Cardwell's clutch relief pitching carried the Cubs their win over the Giants, who lost their fourth straight game. Billy O'Dell was the victim of Altman's blast.

Cardwell retired the last two hitters in the 10th to save the win for Bob Buhl.

O'Toole Threw Five-Hitter
Jim O'Toole held the Cardinals to five hits and Frank Robinson hit a two-run homer as the Reds scored their 13th victory in 14 games. Robinson's homer was his fourth in the last five games.

Bob Shaw of Milwaukee pitched an eight-hitter against the Colts for his third shutout of the season. The game was enlivened by a bat-throwing tantrum by Norm Larker of the Colts after he had been tossed out of the game for protesting a called strike.

BEAUTY, BRAINS RUN IN FAMILY

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Mrs. Arthur Weis, an elementary school teacher, knows what she's talking about when she says "scholastic ability seems to run in the family."

Mrs. Weis entered college at the age of 15 "and so did both of my daughters."

The girls are beauties, too. Miss Landy Suzanne Weis, Miss Air Force in St. Louis for 1962, will enter Washington University's School of Medicine this September at the age of 18.

She is winding up a four-year General Motors scholarship at the university with a degree in mathematics.

Landy's sister, Mary Anita, was graduated from Washington University in 1961 at the age of 18, and is doing graduate work in mathematics. When she was four years old, her mother said the child's IQ was 165.

"She entered the second grade that year and could read fifth-grade text books," the mother said.

Mrs. Weis urges parents to take an interest in their children's study. She stressed the importance of home teaching and reading speed. As for her two girls, Mrs. Weis said, "I gave them 20-minute reading periods from the beginning and just as important, I tried to help them enjoy studying."

CAMP NOW, SAVE LATER

CHICAGO (UPI) — A good camping outfit initially costs about as much as a two-week resort hotel bill for a family of four, says E. H. Regnier, University of Illinois rural recreationist.

"But if the equipment is durable, you're set for several years, he said. Your main expenses in future vacations will be for food and travel to the camp grounds."

Regnier suggested a tarpaulin tent, 10 x 10 foot umbrella model, to sleep four. If the front and side flaps open, living space is doubled. An umbrella model also gives more head room.

A sewed-in floor provides protection from puddles, crawling insects and drafts. One person, he said, can put up a pole version in about 10 minutes.

Air mattresses or lightweight summer sleeping bags are replacing cots, he said. For quick, intense cooking heat, Regnier suggested a two or three burner folding gasoline stove. Be sure to carry cooking fuel in a safety can.

You'll also need a steel or cast aluminum skillet, and plastic dishes are durable and light to pack.

For an ice box, bury and cover with leaves a wooden packing box with a tight-fitting lid.

And for night time safety, you'll need gas lanterns and flashlights.

CHAPTER 14
MATT CULPETER whose father was one of the Kentucky Derby officials, came over to Julie Pendleton with a glass of punch. Julie shook her head and Matt placed it on a table.

"I'm glad Britt Fabian was taken away," he said gallantly. "Because he's been monopolizing you, Julie. Just because he's going to marry you is no reason he has to have every dance."

He caught her in his arms and set her onto the floor. She was too worried to be flattered with his attention or to know it she was dancing well.

She sensed something was wrong and wondered if she should follow Britt. Without giving it further thought, she left Matt in the middle of the floor and made her way quickly to the porch.

Britt was there and so was Casey Jeffries. Also, two of Britt's stablemen and both looked as if they'd been roughed up.

"Casey, too, bore the marks of a scuffle—a torn sleeve, disheveled hair and a slight bruise on his face, which didn't mar the smile he had for her."

"Why, Casey?" she exclaimed. "I didn't know you were coming."

"Neither did anyone else," Britt said sternly. "It seems Mr. Jeffries came across the pastures and over the fence. He was caught prowling around the stables."

"I plead guilty," Casey said cheerfully. "I was caught, fair and square, though your men are a little rough, Mr. Fabian."

"They had orders to be. Jeffries. Now, would you like to explain?"

"It's quite simple. I wanted to come to your party and I had no invitation, so I crashed it."

"In a sneaky sort of way," Britt said.

"Well, yes, but I saw your men stop every car heading down the road to the farm, so I decided I wouldn't get very far unless I circumvented that road block. I'll leave peacefully. How are you, Julie? You look stunning."

"Casey, you shouldn't have done this. Just before the Derby when everyone's on edge is no time for a prank. A man doesn't sneak around a paddock—"

"I apologize. I can't do anything more."

"It's not for me to accept it. This is Britt's house!" Britt motioned for the two men to go back to the paddock.

He touched Julie's chin, lifting her face up so he could look straight into it. "What's the verdict, darling? I leave it to you."

"I don't think Casey meant any harm. He just isn't used to our ways—"

"I thought of that," Britt said. He suddenly turned to Casey and thrust out his hand. "Welcome to Fabian Farms. Casey. You're a friend of Julie's and therefore I welcome you. Please stay and enjoy yourself."

"Thank you," Casey said, though Julie could see that he was puzzled at Britt's sudden change of attitude. They shook hands and then all three entered the house.

Casey took Julie into his arms at once and swept her onto the dance floor.

"The gentleman told me to enjoy myself," he said with one of his smug grins, "and there's no other possible way I could. I told you before, you look stunning. I have to say it again. They shouldn't permit a girl as lovely as you to put on boring clothing."

Julie had to smile, even if she was still angry with Casey. He was an expert dancer and she knew they were getting a great deal of attention.

She saw Lorne Fabian come downstairs to join the party. Britt spoke to him and they both nodded quick agreement to something.

"I don't blame you for liking this sort of life," Casey said. "You read about it and think it couldn't possibly exist, but it does. And it should. Any nation or regional division of a nation, should have tradition. It's enchanting, exciting, beautiful!"

His eyes studied her face intently. Then he nodded. "Yes, Julie," he said, "it's all those things because it's you."

"It's my life," she said. "I don't know any other and I wouldn't want to. Casey, why did you really sneak in tonight?"

"To see you."

"You could have phoned me, driven to the house—"

"Your father and I don't see eye to eye, sweet. Also, our last parting wasn't exactly cordial. Besides, there wouldn't be all this glamour and I wanted to see you at your most beautiful. The last time I saw you, you'd fallen on your pretty face, remember?"

"You're a beast to remind me of it," she said. "I still wear some of the bruises."

"Then tell me a small secret. When they made your father get out of the car at that road block, I was watching. That was when I made up my mind to circle around and come in the way I did. Tell me, Julie, does everyone with a Derby entry act as mysterious and secret as the Fabians?"

"No. We don't like a lot of people coming around, but we keep our secrets close. Friends, this is just a quirk of Lorne Fabian's. He told me a short time ago that he absolutely had to win the Derby this year and he was taking no chances."

"A lot of people snooping around would make his nose nervous? Is that the reason?"

"Possibly, but mostly it's because Lorne simply doesn't want anybody to see his horse. At least, not close up."

"I know he ran the qualifying heats practically in private."

"Yes, I suppose he has a lot of money riding on Lysander and he doesn't want the odds to change. Lysander may be such an outstanding horse his very appearance would bring the odds way down. We racing people always have a substantial reason, Casey. I'm sure Lorne Fabian has, too."

"No doubt. Anyway, it was nice of his son to let me stay."

Lorne Fabian had mounted the small platform on which the seven-piece orchestra played, and he waved his arms and asked for silence.

"My friends," he said, "this is an especially rare evening for me. That all of you are here is extremely important to me. My horse is going to win the Derby, which is also important to me. But an event far more vital than that concerns me tonight."

"Julie Pendleton and my son Britt have asked me to announce that they will be married as soon after the race as possible, with all due respect to the law and the preparations every Kentucky girl likes to make. I know all of you are as happy to hear this announcement as I am to make it."

Just before everyone closed in on Julie to offer best wishes, Casey touched her ear with his lips. His voice was a whisper, but it contained more bitterness than she knew he was capable of.

"Now I know why Britt wanted me to stay. Good-by, Julie. It's time to go now."

Exit Casey Jeffries from Julie's life? Not by a long shot. The Dark Rider continues here tomorrow.
